BANDOBONDI

The bandoneon hits the road

A village square, a motorhome opening its doors, and someone playing their very first note that same afternoon.

Give what you can: every contribution, big or small, brings us closer to the road.

Somewhere, right now, there is someone who may never get to play the bandoneon.

It is not for lack of desire or a good ear:
what they lack is an instrument that costs more than 2,000 dollars, and someone to teach them close to home.

Bandobondi is on its way to find that person.

THE PROJECT

What is it?

Bandobondi is a motorhome turned into a workshop, lab and stage on wheels. It travels through towns and cities to teach, create and play the bandoneon, the very soul of the tango sound, in one place and on one day.

WHO IS BEHIND IT

Mariano Godoy

Argentine bandoneon player and composer. He founded the OEB Bandoneon School and invented Bandolica, an affordable digital bandoneon that has already reached more than 1,000 students in twelve countries. He has shared the stage with Toquinho, Buena Vista Social Club and Lindsey Stirling, and in 2026 he is on a music tour spreading the bandoneon across Italy, France, Spain, Germany and Sweden.

EVERY STOP

A day with Bandobondi

I We arrive

The motorhome sets up in a town square, a school or a cultural centre.

II We teach

An open workshop for anyone who wants to try. We bring the instruments, so no one is left out.

III We create

We record the sounds and voices of the place and compose a new piece with the participants.

IV We play

That same evening we premiere it live, with the community at the heart of the show.

Every stop leaves something behind: people who played the bandoneon for the first time, and a song that did not exist that morning.

Every contribution goes towards buying and equipping the motorhome and the workshop instruments.

Bandobondi has a two-year period from the start of this call to raise the funds needed to buy and equip the motorhome. If the goal is not reached within that period, the funds raised will go towards spreading the bandoneon through the OEB Bandoneon School: free courses during music tours, instrument repairs, and lending bandoneons and Bandolicas to people who do not have their own.
